HUMTOWN PRODUCTS TAKES PART IN 3D-PRINTING OF LIFE-SIZE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

Columbiana, OH – June 29, 2016 – Humtown Products, 44708 Columbiana-Waterford Rd. in Columbiana, is using their unique 3D-printing services to showcase high-tech Mahoning Valley industries at the upcoming Republican National Convention and the first presidential debate.

Humtown helped the Youngstown-Warren Regional Chamber in the creation of a 7-foot-tall 3D-printed Donald Trump bobble head that will be on display in Cleveland at Quicken Loans Arena during the GOP Convention, July 18-21. A life-sized bobble head of Hillary Clinton will be printed and displayed with Trump at the first presidential debate at Wright State University in September.

Humtown produced Trump's body using a 3D printer large enough for the project. They will also be responsible for producing the body for the 3D life-size bobble head of Clinton.

The bodies are printed with sand and held together with resin, and are printed in pieces.

"These are unique projects to work on," said Brandon Lamoncha, sales manager at Humtown. "It's a great experience for our team. We are willing to take on any project that can help show the manufacturing industry how progressive we are and what we have to offer with new technology."

As a manufacturing company for 50 years, Humtown Products specializes in producing sand cores, molds and patterns for the foundry industry. Humtown also specializes in additive manufacturing to provide 3D printing, laser engraving and cutting.
